Cracking

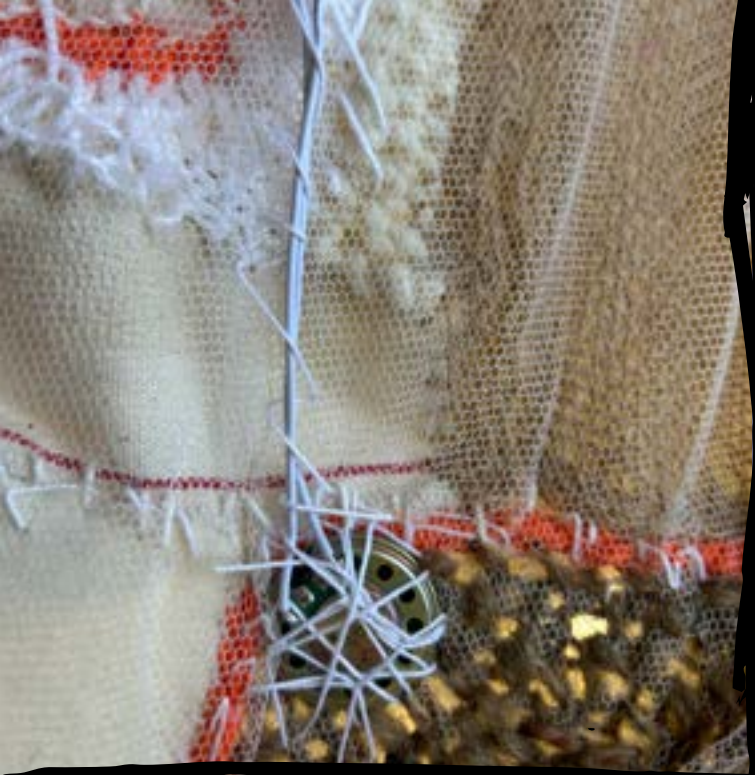

Exhibited at RADAR x Kunsthal Mechelen (April 16–27, 2026)

Presented at STUK, Leuven, as part of Emerging Sound Showcase (November 26, 2026)

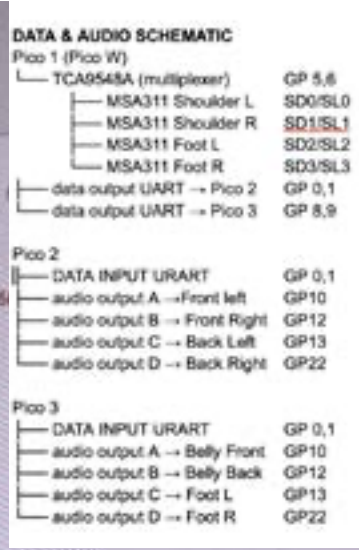

Developed through a series of residencies at RADAR Mechelen, Werktank Leuven, Klankenbos/Musica (Pelt), and Q-O2 Brussels.

MicroPython IDE interface showing code for a Pico W microcontroller. The code includes comments and function calls for generating pulse-width modulation (PWM) signals for audio output. Key lines include: # EXPECTS: pwmL, pwmR, VOLUME already defined; # random interval; # random amplitude; # random stereo panning; and # 118 (2ms) pwmL.duty_u16(ampL); pwmR.duty_u16(ampR); time.sleep_ms(2); # 119 (2ms) pwmL.duty_u16(0); pwmR.duty_u16(0); time.sleep_ms(interval_ms);
```

Sound is generated through pulse-wave modulation programmed on microprocessors, transforming sensor input into subtle sonic responses.

INTERDISCIPLINARY PRACTICE

My practice integrates artistic research, sound, coding, textile and installation to develop responsive environments that explore instability, fragility and embodied listening.

A performance with Mirthe Dokter wearing the costume was presented at the opening of the Cracking exhibition on April 16,

The costume amplifies bodily fragility and translates instability into sound.
